What Being a Reservist Offers You

- ✓ Be part of helping communities respond, recover and rebuild after a disaster.
- ✓ Build your network and make lifelong friends.
- ✓ Travel the country and experience different cultures.

What You Can Expect

Work is intermittent; deployments may last from several weeks to several months.

Salary depends on the position, experience and background.

Healthcare benefits are available.

Travel expenses and per diem are paid.

Most reservists are expected to travel to a disaster site within 48 hours of request.

FEMA needs on-call reservists in the following cadres:

Disaster Survivor Assistance

Establishes a timely presence in the affected area to address survivors' immediate and emerging needs.

External Affairs

Communicates with stakeholders in Congress, the media, Federal, State, tribal, territorial and local governments, the private sector, and FEMA employees.

Individual Assistance

Ensures that people affected by disasters have timely access to the full range of FEMA programs.

Information Technology

Provides information services at all incident locations during all phases of disaster operations.

Logistics

Coordinates and monitors resource planning, movement, ordering, tracking, and property management during the life of an incident.

Mitigation

Manages risk reduction activities including public education, private sector partnerships, and providing technical assistance to stakeholders.

Public Assistance

Assist in grant reimbursement and management for eligible government and non-profit entities dealing with debris removal, emergency protective measures and infrastructure repair and replacement.
